

Oil Meeting Under Way

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Egypt's leading newspaper predicts that the Arab oil ministers meeting today in Tripoli will follow President Anwar Sadat's lead and end the oil embargo against the United States. Diplomats in the Libyan capital are doubtful.

There is also a possibility that some of the nations will abandon the embargo and some, like Libya, will continue it.

The meeting will be the Arabs' third try to get together on Sadat's proposal to end the embargo in appreciation for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's efforts in getting Israeli forces withdrawn from the Suez Canal. Meetings scheduled for Feb. 14 in Tripoli and last Sunday in Cairo were cancelled because of Algerian and Libyan opposition.

The embargo on shipments to the United States and the Netherlands has been in effect since the October Arab-Israeli war because of their support of Israel. Syria, Algeria and Libya want it to continue until Israel agrees to pull back on the Syrian front.

The prediction of success for the Egyptian president's proposal to call off the oil war came from the Tripoli correspondent of Al Ahran, the Cairo newspaper that often speaks for the Egyptian government. He reported the meeting today would end the ban on shipments to the United States and the Netherlands and suspend the cutbacks in production of 25 per cent and more that were ordered in hopes other oil-buying nations would exert effective pressure on the United States.

Al Ahran said the meeting would end with a communique analyzing the effects of the oil weapon and explaining the decision to shelve it. It said the conference would recognize the U.S. government's efforts to resolve the Middle East conflict and would be within the framework of the Arabs' "policy of flexibility."

Diplomats in Tripoli indicated that, despite Sadat's strong pressure on the other Arab governments, they might not go along with him. And the Libyan government radio on the eve of the conference loosed a new blast at the United States, saying:

"The conference comes at a time when the Arab world is experiencing more plots and challenges from the Zionist enemy supported by the United States. The use of oil has proven an effective weapon for the Arab cause."

Nixon To Fight Impeachment Data Requests

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House has served notice it will resist any sweeping House Judiciary Committee request for broad-scale access to presidential tape recordings or documents.

Two of President Nixon's top aides stopped short Tuesday of flatly rejecting the committee's move to obtain 42 additional Watergate tape recordings.

But presidential counsellor Bryce Harlow and Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler made clear Nixon's strong opposition to granting the panel virtually unlimited access to White House files.

In separate sessions with reporters, Harlow and Ziegler pictured the White House position as follows:

The President already is supplying the committee with all tapes and documents turned over earlier to special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski and, once the committee analyzes it, it should find the material sufficient to conclude its impeachment inquiry.

In addition, the two officials said the committee — before seeking any more White House tapes or documents — should define what it considers impeachable offenses and say what specific allegations it is investigating. Ziegler declared it would be "constitutionally irresponsible" for Nixon to accede to any committee requests until such a definition is made.

Harlow agreed, adding that "there are times when the executive branch must not furnish papers" to the congressional branch of government.

However, Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said the committee has no intention of preparing charges before it gathers all the evidence it thinks it needs.

And Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, the committee's second-ranking Republican, said that, if the White House intends to withhold the additional material the committee is seeking on such grounds, "it definitely signals a serious confrontation between Congress and the executive branch."

Ponder Coal Allocations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has launched a high-level study to determine if coal should be allocated this year because of possible shortages.

"At this stage, I don't foresee the need for allocation," said James W. McLane, chairman of the interagency task force conducting the study. "But let's see where we stand by the middle of summer."

McLane, deputy director of the Cost of Living Council, said possible labor troubles, energy demand, shortages of fuel to run equipment, and transportation problems are plaguing the industry.

As he spoke of the possibility of coal allocation, the American Automobile Association said Tuesday that it noted a general improvement in gasoline availability at service stations nationally.

The AAA said that about 5 per cent of the more than 6,000 stations checked reported they were out of gasoline, compared with 20 per cent the week before.

The Internal Revenue Service also reported that it received 20,000 complaints of price gouging by gasoline stations in the week ending March 1 and believes that is the peak if the shortage doesn't get worse.

And the administration has sent Congress a stripped-down proposal for emergency energy legislation, the Federal Energy Office said.

The new proposal contains two key features contained in emergency legislation vetoed on other grounds by President Nixon. It would give Nixon authority for mandatory energy conservation and rationing, if necessary.

Although the nation has plenty of coal in the ground, the administration has become worried about the supply later this year because of the energy crunch.

McLane said his task force, which includes representatives from the departments of Interior, Transportation and Commerce, the Environmental Protection Agency, Federal Power Commission and FEO, will complete its study within a few weeks.

Find More Gasoline Available

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Automobile Association says arrival of new gasoline allocations for March generally is making fuel more available at service stations across the country.

The AAA reported Tuesday that in a spot check of 6,105 stations, only about 5 per cent were out of gasoline this week compared with 20 per cent the previous week.

The survey showed that 9 per cent of the stations checked were shutting down their gasoline pumps by noon on weekdays, compared with 11 per cent last week.

Stations limiting gasoline purchases decreased to 22 per cent from 25 per cent the week before, the AAA said. However, it said 7 per cent of the stations surveyed were limiting their own daily gasoline sales this week, up from 3 per cent last week.

The AAA survey found the highest average price for regular gasoline was 57 cents a gallon, in Michigan. The highest average price reported for premium gasoline was 64 cents per gallon, in Oregon.

The lowest average price for regular was 48 cents a gallon in both Rhode Island and Texas, the AAA said, while Texas also had the lowest average price for premium at 51 cents per gallon.

New Gunfire Breaks Out In Mideast

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli and Syrian artillery exchanged fire for two hours just after dawn today, according to the Israeli command. A spokesman said there were no Israeli casualties.

The exchange followed four hours of heavy shelling Tuesday, when hundreds of shells crossed the tense cease-fire line and shock waves from Israeli 175mm cannon fire shook the ground in Damascus, 23 miles from the front.

Syria said it shot down an Israeli helicopter, but Israel denied the claim.

The Israelis made no comment on claims by Damascus that Syrian gunners made direct hits on a dozen military targets.

There were no reports of casualties. Deputy Premier Yigal Allon warned late Tuesday that "any attempt by Syria to renew hostilities may backfire." But Premier Golda Meir said Israel "would make every effort to reach a disengagement of forces with Syria."

Pentagon Opposes Amnesty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon today opposed amnesty for Vietnam war deserters and draft resisters, saying it would be unfair now and set a dangerous precedent. "The alternatives were clear at the time a choice was made and an individual should be required to face the consequences of the choice he made," Lt. Gen. Leo E. Benade said in prepared testimony.

Benade, deputy assistant secretary of defense for personnel policy, was among witnesses scheduled for a House Judiciary subcommittee's third day of hearings on legislating amnesty.

He said men had to take the place of draft evaders and said some of them undoubtedly "were just as reluctant to participate in a war."

"But they served their country," he said. "Some suffered temporarily. Some suffered permanently. Some died."

Benade also said amnesty for deserters and draft evaders would "dangerously impair any future draft, undermine military justice and hurt military morale and discipline."

Benade said the Pentagon opposed even the most modest amnesty proposal before the subcommittee, case-by-case granting of amnesty to men willing to serve two years in the military or in civilian service.

But the author of that proposal, Rep. Howard W. Robison, R-N.Y., said in a prepared statement that Congress must legislate some form of amnesty to help replenish the national spirit by "putting away at least some part of the recent legacy of dogmatic confrontation."

Warm Praise Floods Firm For Employee Relationship

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Disbelief and warm praise have flooded into Arthur Friedman's appliance store since word got out that his employees set their own pay and other working conditions.

"We've had calls from all over the country from people who wanted to know if it was really true," Friedman said Tuesday. "It's true."

Friedman, 51, who sports mutton-chop whiskers, added: "Television people have been here, and I've been interviewed on the radio. I didn't think we were so special."

A woman who mailed a clipping of Friedman's story had written above the headline, "May you prosper beyond your imagination."

About five years ago, Friedman, with the assent of his brother and partner, Morris, turned the traditional boss-employee set-up topsy turvy and let the workers do what they pleased.

Friedman said he decided to put his philosophy — "Find out what people want, and give it to them" — on the line. So he let his 12 employees at Friedman's Appliances set their own pay and raises, days off, holidays, vacations and most other conditions.

"What the employees wanted turned out to be what we wanted anyway," he said.

Morris Friedman says, "If we give fellowship, love and understanding, that's what we get back. And we get back exactly what we give out. People respond in kind. Nobody rips us off."

Friedman's sends customers thousands of cards offering to service appliances free. And if installment customers "forget" payments or quit paying altogether, Arthur Friedman sends them a form letter any credit manager would consider incredible. It says:

"For some reason, which we don't really understand, you have decided not to pay the bill which you owe to us. This letter officially cancels that bill, and you no longer are under any obligation to pay us."

"We have decided not to give this bill to a collection agency, as our gain would be small compared to your loss,"

Says Arthur, "Sometimes they pay us, sometimes they don't. That's the way it goes."

How's business?

"No worse than usual," he said.

Non-Teaching School Workers Face Loss

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Majority Senate Republicans were set today to approve and send to the House a bill to keep non-teaching school employees from drawing jobless pay this summer.

It repeals a section of 1973 law that would have its initial effect June 1 of this year, when teachers' aides, janitors, bus drivers, and others could apply for benefits.

The repealer, which sponsors claim is needed to prevent hard pressed school districts from wrecking their budgets, faces an uncertain fate in the Democratic-controlled House.

A pair of bills backed by labor unions cleared the House Tuesday as state lawmakers returned from weekend recess. Both met with Republican opposition but the final votes transcended party lines.

During their floor session, senators added their approval 27-3 to a bill creating "urban townships" with populations of 10,000 or more and allowing them to extend civil service to police and fire departments of 10 or more officers or firemen each.

Among six new bills introduced in the two chambers was one by Rep. Norman A. Murdock, R-21 Cincinnati, to create an Ohio Commerce Commission assured of changing political control every five years and taking away key appointive powers of the governor and Senate.

Murdock, a self-declared candidate for the GOP nomination for governor for a time late last year, probably won't get his bill heard this late in the session. Both parties are on record as wanting to take politics out of the existing Department of Commerce, however.

Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, is chief sponsor of the unemployment compensation bill. He introduced it after numerous school districts said they could not afford employer contributions to the system for "part time" employees, or those hired on less than a 12-month basis. It provides however, that any employee still without work after a new school year started would become eligible for benefits.

Rep. J. Leonard Camera, D-53

Lorain, won House approval of a two-bill package that requires the state's prevailing wage to be paid on all public projects.

The first measure requires that a public authority contracting for a project must name a coordinator to monitor the prevailing wage at the construction site. It received 63-22 approval.

Representatives okayed Camera's second bill 77-8. It requires that any adjustments made in wages as a result of a new collective bargaining agreement after acceptance of a contract must be included in the prevailing wage.

"If a public authority submits a bid on the basis of the prevailing wage, and after two years, another round of negotiations increases a union rate from $6 to $6.25 an hour, then the contractor would be required to pay it," Camera told the House.

In most cases, he said, construction contracts on public projects run about a year or less, but some — such as the new State Office Tower in Columbus — run up to three years or more, he said.

New wage talks approaching normally are factors in the consideration of submitting a bid, he added.

Camera said the legislation in part is designed to help solve a problem of the Department of Industrial Relations. That agency does not have the manpower to adequately monitor construction operations to determine whether the prevailing wage is being honored, he explained.

Sen. Paul R. Matia led a brief floor fight against the bill that permits townships of 1, or more to establish Civil Service Commissions to put police and firemen under civil service coverage.

He said that while he agrees with the intent of the legislation, he fears it will have the effect of creating "a fourth branch of government," in addition to cities, villages, and townships.

The Westlake Republican predicted: "Now, we'll have urban townships, and we can be sure that before too long, they are going to be asking for additional powers."

Joining Matia in opposing the legislation, which now goes back to the House for consideration of Senate amendments, were Sens. Max H. Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, and Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland.

The Senate approved 30-0 and sent to the House a measure clarifying the right of newly elected school board members to help pick the date for the board's first meeting in organizational years. The meetings must be held between Jan. 1 and Jan. 15, under a law enacted by the legislature in 1972.

The House approved 75-2 a Senate bill that would expand the duties of dental hygienists, enabling them to clean teeth and not be in violation of the law.

Committee testimony indicated that under present law such procedures could be considered a "surgical procedure" and thus be a violation.

The bill also allows a dentist to have two rather than one hygienist under his employ. The State Dental Board could also adopt rules allowing dentists to employ "qualified personnel" to do some of the work that only hygienists can now perform.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, evidently anticipating good news from a conference of Arab oil ministers, rolled up a strong advance today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 7.51 at 894.63, and gainers overwhelmed losers by better than 2 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said investors seemed to be strongly optimistic that the Arab meeting in Tripoli later in the day, would culminate in a relaxation of the Middle East producing countries' embargo on oil shipments to the United States. An Egyptian newspaper predicted the embargo would be ended.

Avis, Inc., jumped 5½ to 21½. American Express Co. agreed to pay $25 a share to acquire Avis, which is now 52 per cent owned by International Telephone & Telegraph. ITT was up ¼ at 25½ on the NYSE, American Express was quoted at 47½ bid, up ¼, in the over-the-counter market.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed .82 to 100.97.

Man Arrested In Slaying

A 22-year-old Route 2, Kingston man has been arrested and charged with the murder of Ruth Nolan Arledge. James Bobby Hunt, a deaf mute, was charged with the slaying of the woman. Her body was found in a ditch along Ridge Road in Tar Hollow last Sunday morning.

According to a report from Ross County officials, the motive of the slaying was robbery as her purse was found nearby and the contents scattered about the ground. Hunt was involved in arson charges when a fire broke out at the Elmwood Branch of the Pickaway Grain Company in April of 1972.

Judge William Ammer said Hunt had been committed to Orient State Institute after the charges were filed but the arson charge and a breaking entering charge were still pending here in Pickaway County.

Reports indicate that Hunt walked away from Orient State Institute after only two days confinement.

Hunt, who lived near the dead woman, voluntarily returned with the Ross County sheriff's deputies from Columbus Tuesday morning. He is being charged with aggravated murder which carries a possible death sentence.

Hunt's fingerprints were found on the dead woman's car. The auto was parked about a quarter of a mile from the body.

Circleville police are investigating a breaking and entering, grand larceny and auto larceny at the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. substation on W. Mound St. sometime between 11 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

According to the report of Ptl. Mike Rinehart, a lock was pried off a gate at the plant to gain entry to the premises.

The thieves loaded 1120 pounds of copper wire onto a company truck and drove it to a vacant lot at the Container Corporation property where it is believed they transferred the wire to another truck.

Police recovered the company truck where the thieves abandoned it. The value of the copper was set at $855.05.

A Page Of Opinion

Fear Is Natural

There is nothing wrong with being afraid. Fear is normal. It is an instinctive part of man's makeup, a built-in chemical reaction to help him meet danger.

Only when the mechanism gets out of kilter, to produce excessive fear of little things or apathy in the face of danger, is the individual reacting abnormally.

Every normal person feels increased tensions at times, which will not mean he is becoming neurotic as long as his reaction is not extreme. The person who is unmoved by such feelings, unless he is an ignoramus, is not reacting normally. The person who reacts extravagantly will bear watching, too.

In World War II some neurotics who lived through bombing raids actually seemed to become more normal. Having something real to be afraid of made their imaginary or exaggerated fears lose importance to them.

Associating with others in the same fix and hearing their fears expressed helped such neurotics to feel more secure and get a grip on themselves. In fact, some experts say, one of the best antidotes for fear, is talking about it with other people.

Fear is less harmful to those who do not exaggerate it, belittle it, or run away from it.

Red Carpet For Nixon

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—The Russians are readying their reddest carpet for the expected visit in June of President Nixon. The regal Kremlin suite he and Mrs. Nixon used during the Moscow Summit two years ago—the high point period of the President's popularity—awaits them. The Red Army musicians are taking refresher courses in the Star Spangled Banner. Old Glory has been dry-cleaned and is ready to be run up the flag pole to take its ceremonial place next to the Hammer and Sickle.

Brezhnev and the rest of the Soviet hierarchy will give the President a much more cordial reception than the embattled Chief Executive could hope to receive in any portion of his native land. Even if at the appointed period of the scheduled visit, he may be under impeachment proceedings by the full House of Representatives.

The official Russian view of Watergate, personal taxes, erased tapes and wholesale indictments of former associates is that this is an internal American matter and therefore should be ignored in the U.S.S.R. The control over the Russian news media is so tight that there is seldom, if ever, any mention of such names as Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Stans, Dean, Vesco, Hughes, Ervin, Rodino, Sirica, and so forth. Instead, TASS's man in Washington sent home a friendly account of the President's latest news conference. He had the President winning all the way.

The wintry anti-American chill that showed itself in Pravda and the other periodicals during the "alert" phase of the Yon Kippur War has been replaced by breaths of spring. Brezhnev, flying to meet Castro, radioed a warm greeting to the President from high off shore.

The Soviets want to expand trade and other ties with the U.S. They want the fruit of our know-how and are willing to pay for same. They want recognition as a "favored nation," the same kind of tariff relief we give to many countries. There's reason to believe that they want to cool the megaton race as much as we do. As part of the window-dressing of the new Summit, there is a likelihood visas will be issued to scores of Jews and others in the arts and sciences who have been trying to get out for years.

Mr. Nixon's political career was founded on his fight against Communism. It is an historical footnote that today his credentials—so shaky at home—are strongest at the fountainhead of Communism.

Some persons take great pride in being chosen for jury duty. They feel that such service, however inconvenient or boring, is part of the responsibility of citizenship. They are commendable, publicspirited and deserve more than the judge's perfunctory thanks at the time of their release.

Others are almost psychopathically eager to serve, and for varied reasons that may have little to do with the case at hand. An example of this was the list of panelmen, questioned for possible jury duty in the trial of Jack Ruby, murderer of murderous Lee Harvey Oswald, who swore they were so unbiased they didn't even look at the TV news showing Ruby shooting the assassin.

They apparently had spent all their time asleep at the bottom of an abandoned lead mine. A couple of them were actually selected, if memory serves.

The jury in the first trial of Dr. Sam Sheppard seemed to spend as much time balloting on where to have lunch as making up their mind about Sam. There was a strong pro-Chinese food bloc within the jury, apparently. Each day they'd march back to the dismal courthouse from the nearest Chinese joint, a few of them queasy, the rest happily awash in won ton.

The jurors who will determine the fates of former Cabinet Officers John N. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans are guarded, housed, watered and fed like high-toned inmates of a country club prison. They eat at Mama Leone's, Gallagher's and the Brasserie—three expensive places. After dinner they are permitted to have two servings of highballs, cocktails, wine or beer. Each of their hotel rooms is single occupancy, but the phones, TV sets and radios have been removed for the duration. They are provided with copies of the New York newspapers after all references to the trial are scissored out. There are TV sets in a "recreation room" in their hotel, but newscasts, talk shows, Johnny Carson, and the Sunday afternoon grillings of public officials are a no-no. They may attend church, synagogue, or the theater accompanied by U.S. marshals. They want a swimming pool.

They may not want to go home.

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Stretch your feet. Relax. Take the train in Italy.

A 400-mile second class trip from Milan to Rome still costs only $8. The same trip by car costs more than $20 in gas and tolls in Italy. A comparable train trip in Britain costs $15, in Holland and West Germany, $18.

But to provide this inexpensive service, Italy's state-controlled rail company goes into debt about $3 million a day.

And it probably won't be so inexpensive in the near future.

To cut its deficit, the company first declared war on free riders — about 10,000 persons, many of them war veterans.

Thousands of others, mainly state employees, have discounts amounting to 80 per cent of the fare.

The company hopes that reducing the number of free riders and those with hefty discounts will bring in at least an extra million dollars a day.

In addition, the government is considering an undisclosed boost in prices for passengers and cargo. Over the same distance, trains are 50 per cent cheaper in Italy than in any other European nation.

Plans also call for replacing compartmentalized passenger cars with less expensive motor coaches which can carry more people.

A rail official in Milan notes that while passenger service requires a lot of personnel, passenger trains themselves have a limited life span.

"Freight cars, on the other hand, have a longer life span and require less maintenance and cargo by train can be a real business for the railway company if present lines could be doubled," he says.

At present, the Italian freight service is slow, however, since passenger trains have priority on the already overcrowded tracks. A box car can take more than a month to travel from Paris to Milan, and this discourages business.

It is considered unlikely the railway company will cut the number of passenger trains, since rising motoring costs brought on by oil supply problems are expected to boost passenger volume on trains.

In 1973, passengers averaged 975,000 daily and the figure is expected to rise 3 per cent by 1976.

Electric Auto Firm Swamped

SEBRING, Fla. (AP) — Officials of a company that is manufacturing the first electric automobiles to be mass produced in the United States in 50 years say they are being swamped with orders.

Sebring Vanguard Inc. started production here Monday on the $2,269 battery-powered twinseater that travels at speeds up to 30 miles an hour.

"Response has been fantastic," said Robert G. Beaumont, company president. "We've gotten orders from all over the country, the Bahamas and Australia."

Fifty cars are to be ready for delivery by the end of this month and 2,500 before the end of the year, company officials said.

"It is the economic, efficient, modern answer to the second- or third-car family," Beaumont said.

The vehicle can go about 50 miles on one charge. Estimated operating costs are one-half cent per mile.

Beaumont said the car is recharged by plugging it into a wall outlet for about seven hours. The recharge takes about seven kilowatts of electricity.

Rap Government For Energy Crisis

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Standard Oil Co. of Ohio's President Alton W. Whitehouse Monday blamed the energy crisis on government controls.

"As a nation, we've gone on record as wanting to be self-sufficient energy-wise, yet we're hampered by federal and state laws which are often unclear, contradictory or even selfish in their intent," Whitehouse said.

Whitehouse said the nation's energy problems cannot be solved until Congress amends laws which he said now discourage exploration, production, refining and marketing of petroleum.

Ambulance Contracts Supported By Judge

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Ohio municipalities have the right to enter into subsidy contracts to provide ambulance service to their residents, a Summit County Common Pleas Court judge ruled Monday.

The decision by judge Daniel Quillin stemmed from a lawsuit filed by the city of Stow. The city sought to determine whether its $19,800 a year contract with Stow Ambulance Inc. was legal.

"We were exchanging symptoms in the waiting room, and now I've forgotten which ones were mine."

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

I have a heart condition and I have heard about a "by-pass" operation for it.

I have asked my doctor about it, but he says that it is not for me.

Can you tell me when this operation is used?

Mr. G. L., R. I.

Dear Mr. L.:
In order to understand more about the by-pass operation it is necessary to know more about the specific disease of the heart for which the operation is performed.

The coronary arteries normally bring blood and oxygen to the heart muscle. When these arteries are narrowed by arteriosclerosis, the heart muscle cries out in pain for more blood and oxygen. This is known as "angina pectoris."

When one of these arteries closes off completely, a portion of the heart muscle, deprived of its blood and oxygen, becomes weakened, and the so-called heart attack occurs.

The wonders and the wisdom of the body are magnificent. Yet nowhere else in the body is there such evidence of inadequate compensation for a deficiency as there is in the heart. Almost all other important organs have some backup reserve if they fail.

For this reason the by-pass operation was created, to bring an increased amount of blood and oxygen to the heart when its own coronary arteries are inadequate. The operation is performed by removing a portion of a large vein from the leg and inserting it into the heart muscle in the area where the coronary artery is diseased.

Blood then is rerouted, by-passed, or shunted, around the closed coronary artery, to go directly into the heart muscle.

When your doctor said that the operation was "not for you," his decision was based on his knowledge of your particular heart problem.

All medical or surgical treatment for heart conditions is specifically designed to meet the requirements of each individual case. There are indications and contra-indications for every form of treatment.

The by-pass operation is carefully selected only after the most intensive studies. The risk involved is carefully balanced against its advantages.

At present, a number of excellent surveys are in progress to determine the value of the operation, and how long the benefits are maintained.

You can be certain that you are not being deprived of this form of modern surgery. Rather you are being guarded against hazards and risks.

Top Irishman

By JIM BISHOP

The phone call was from David M. Bartley, Speaker of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. "Mr. Bishop," he said, "the St. Patrick's Day Committee has chosen you as the Irishman of the Year . . ." He said more, but all I could hear was my father's sepulchral voice murmuring, "Well, now. Will wonders never cease?"

It is one of the ironies of all time that, at the moment, two Bostonians were having coffee with me. John McCormack of the Canteen Corporation and Dennis McKenna, state senator, are fellow golfers who play from lie to lie. When they heard that "Dave" was on the phone, both leapt from their chairs and said, "For God's sake, say yes!"

I said yes. They sat. So, next week I will be in Holyoke, the warm American bosom of the Gaels, to participate in two days of festivities which should parch the throat of a whale.

Seriously, it is a great honor. Originally, the award was called the "Outstanding American of Irish Descent Award." This worries me a bit, and so does the qualification, "who, by his life's work and contributions to our country, has become a credit to his forefathers and a friend and benefactor to all of mankind."

That's a jaw full. What have I done? Written some books and a couple of thousand newspaper columns, any of which, redone, could be improved. May I recite the names of a few earlier winners of this award? John F. Kennedy, Pat O'Brien, Bob Considine, Richard Cardinal Cushing, former Speaker John McCormack and Senator Edward Kennedy.

Modesty is not my strong suit, but you could take all the Bishops and all their accomplishments and toss them into Bantry Bay without creating a ripple. The only thing we ever monopolized was poverty. My old man said we had a hammerlock on it.

The Bishops all came from Lower Scooby, Wexford. The Murphys were city slickers—Cork. The McSwiggens were so proud they never told anybody where they came from. My sainted mother said none of them could spell it.

Since the death of a President, the award has been renamed "The John F. Kennedy Memorial Award." The President, in October 1963, showed me the hand-tooled leather volume of photos the Irish had sent him as a token of his visit.

He got a royal homecoming at Enniscorthy, on the River Slaney. A short, fat Lord Mayor, replete with plug hat and sash of office, took Kennedy's hand and almost yanked him over the mayor's head. The President told me he felt nervous because the Irish had built a huge grandstand with its back on the river.

It looked frail. "I asked the Lord Mayor why he hadn't built it on the other side of the square." He punched Kennedy in the ribs and pointed to the river. "Then what the hell would be the good of paying them two men in the rowboat?"

Irishmen are like fields of asparagus—green and all the same size. The most dangerous thing is for one to become bigger than the others. In Jersey City, we had a police chief named Monaghan, a huge man with beer foam on his mustache, who had the nerve to have his picture taken in front of City Hall.

He sent it back to Ireland with the words: "I want all of ye to know I am doing well in the new country." Someone sent the photo to the mayor. Jersey City had one new chief and one new penitent.

My father, John Michael Bishop Himself, was born here but was more Irish than his parents. As a police lieutenant, he fought gun battles, but at the first clap of thunder he blessed himself and walked into a closet.

Neither of my parents believed that writing was proper work. Show them a man who spit on each hand separately and lifted a pickax and they smiled benevolently. I had been making a living as a writer 25 years and finished a manuscript called "The Day Lincoln Was Shot." I stopped at their apartment to play euchre with my father. "Is the book finished?" he said. "The book is finished," I said. "Son," my mother said smiling, "if this one doesn't sell, do you think you'll go out and look for a job?"

My father was living with me in his final years. One night I refused him a second nightcap. He was 85, and the doctor said it was dangerous. He got the first one by hiding all the shot glasses and holding out a water goblet. "That's enough," I said, and went to bed.

There was a tap on the door. He opened it a trifle. "Before the action begins," he roared, "I disown you." So maybe, to be proper, I am not eligible for this noble award. But I'll be in Holyoke to pick it up, in case anybody wants to start a fight . . .

Ex-Presidents' Taxes Checked By Nixon Aides

NEW YORK (AP) — President Nixon suggested in June of 1969 that White House staff members check the tax returns of former presidents to see what deductions they had taken, the New York Times said today.

The disclosure was based on a memorandum dated June 16, 1969, and written by John D. Ehrlichman, then domestic affairs adviser to the President, the Times reported. It said the memorandum — addressed to an Ehrlichman aide, Edward L. Morgan — is now in the hands of congressional investigators.

In the memorandum, Ehrlichman indirectly quotes the President regarding a number of questions he had about how to minimize his tax payments.

These included the possibility of taking deductions as a business use for all or part of his houses in San Clemente and Key Biscayne. The President later took some deductions of this type.

Gerald L. Warren, deputy White House press secretary, said when asked about the report: "I know the President himself didn't review any returns of past presidents." He said he did not know whether presidential assistants had seen such returns.

The Times said a section of the Internal Revenue Code prohibits disclosure of any information contained in a tax return except for specially authorized purposes.

'Orange Box Derby' Slated

SAN DIEGO (AP)—An electrician who lived in Akron, Ohio, as a youth and remembers that building soapbox derby cars was fun says it's time to get things back where they were.

"The soap box derby became too professional," says Anthony L. Hodges. "It is competition among adults now, not the kids."

The first annual "Orange Box Derby" will be staged May 4 in San Diego County somewhere, preceded by a preliminary race April 20 to pick finalists.

Abortion Measure Faces Trouble

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Supporters of a bill to regulate abortions in Ohio appear to be headed for trouble in the House—even if the measure survives the Senate floor intact.

Flashes signaling trouble went up last week when the measure came out of the Senate Judiciary Committee with a major provision that would deny abortion payments to welfare clients.

The state Department of Welfare began paying for client abortions last August after Ohio's old abortion was stricken by a decision of the U.S. Supreme Court. That statute prohibited abortions except to save the life of the mother.

Richard Lightner, welfare's public information officer, estimated that the state has paid for "about a thousand" abortions thus far at the rate of $100 to $150 each.

Members of the Senate subcommittee that worked on the pending bill several weeks maintained that was an expense the state shouldn't have to bear.

Some attorneys claim that to deny welfare clients the right to have an abortion is unconstitutional. Benson Wolman, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Ohio, is among those who maintain the new law would run afoul of the constitution on grounds of discrimination.

Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, sponsor of the legislation, which underwent major changes in the Senate, also raised the same question. The Toledoan also said he understands blacks in the House will fight the provision, if it remains in the bill when it comes back to the House.

Another major change by the Senate committee had some lawmakers wondering if the Judiciary Committee had gone too far. They noted that the bill, rather than prohibiting abortions in the last three months of pregnancy, contains no prohibition against surgery at any time during pregnancy.

The U.S. Supreme Court, most legal spokesmen agreed, said in its decision that states do have the authority to impose the ban during the last three months.

Generally, the measure requires abortions to be performed by physicians, protects by criminal penalty the life of a child born through attempted abortion, outlaws experimentation and sale of a fetus, and affirms the right of public and private hospitals to refuse an abortion on grounds of conscience.

It also requires third party (parent, custodian or guardian) consent for abortions performed on unmarried minors.

The world's largest cemetery in Leningrad contains more than 500,000 of the 1.3 million victims of the German siege of 1941-42.

Senate Eyes Death Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate is taking up a bill providing for a mandatory death penalty for certain kinds of federal offenses in the absence of mitigating circumstances.

The measure expected to be brought before the Senate today is an effort to overcome a 1972 Supreme Court decision ruling unconstitutional the death penalty as applied under most state and federal laws.

Strongly urged by President Nixon a year ago, the bill was recently approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"The only way to attack crime in America is the way crime attacks our people — without pity," Nixon said.

Since the Supreme Court's 5-4 decision, which did not rule that capital punishment in itself is unconstitutional, 21 states have passed legislation to reinstate the death penalty.

The Senate bill provides for the death penalty for national security offenses such as treason and espionage, and for other crimes like hijacking and kidnapping in which murder is committed.

The death penalty would be mandatory if certain specified aggravating circumstances were present but would be barred if any of five mitigating circumstances were present.

Studded Tires Must Come Off

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Studded snow tires must be off by Friday or motorists face fines up to $100, the state Department of Highway Safety has reminded.

Under a bill passed by the General Assembly last session, studded snow tires may be used only between Nov. 15 and March 15.

The road-gripping tires have been shown to damage roadways and so are limited for use during the winter season, said a department spokesman.

Nuclear Arms Race May Be Revived

EDITOR'S NOTE — In an era of detente diplomacy, the relative military strength of the United States and the Soviet Union is a matter of concern and debate. This, the first of two articles on U.S. and Soviet strength, deals with the nuclear balance.

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia is off and running and the United States is getting set to sprint, if necessary, so the Soviet Union won't get far out front in nuclear weapons.
Whether another nuclear arms marathon can be prevented will depend on the kind of long-term curbs that U.S. and Soviet diplomats may forge in their second round of talks now under way in Geneva.
But so far, one senior official said, "The hard fact is that SALT II has shown little progress."
Both Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger and Soviet Defense Minister Andrei Grechko have shown they are dubious about prospects for detente, a real end to the long cold war.
In the temporary SALT agreement signed in 1972, American negotiators rested their confidence in U.S. technology when they conceded a hefty numerical bulge to the Russians in land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) and submarine-launched missiles.

In effect, they believed Russian advantages in numbers and size of missile launchers were offset by the better accuracy of U.S. weapons and, more important, the U.S. ability to mount clusters of warheads on American missiles.
The interim SALT agreement, while limiting numbers of missile launchers, placed no curbs on warheads and left both countries free to develop sophisticated improvements. In other words, the SALT pact allowed the technological race to continue.
By last summer, only a little more than a year after that first SALT agreement was completed, the Soviets demonstrated that they had caught up with the United States in the vital technique of arming their ICBMs with multiple warheads that could be aimed at separate targets (MIRVs).
And now, after analyzing data collected in observing Russian missile tests, U.S. defense officials say they are surprised at how fast and how far the Russians have come.
The Soviets have tested four new ICBMs, three of them with MIRVs. All could be ready for combat next year.
American experts are alarmed because several of these advanced types of missiles have two or three times the "throw weight" they had anticipated — which means the missiles can hurl more nuclear warheads packing more power.

Russian tests also have disclosed upgraded guidance, which translates into greater accuracy.
Furthermore, U.S. missile specialists say the Soviets are using an improved pop-up launching technique by which a missile is expelled from its silo by compressed air and gas before its engines are lit. This "cold launch" method permits firing larger missiles from existing silos and allows faster reloading of the silos.
In another important gain, the Soviets have installed a new 4,200-mile-range missile in their advanced Delta class submarines. This missile reaches 1,300 miles farther than the U.S. submarine-launched Poseidon.
Defense officials say there is no evidence the Russians have yet achieved separately targetable multiple warheads for their submarine-fired missiles, although they have begun installing simpler shotgun-type warheads on earlier model weapons in their Yankee class subs.
As for bombers, the Russians are expected to organize the first squadron of about 25 new Backfire strategic aircraft this year.
U.S. officials still are uncertain about the intended mission of the swing-wing, supersonic Backfire. Most U.S. military experts believe the plane is designed chiefly for potential targets in Western Europe and China.
But the Backfire could be used against the United States if refueled in flight, they say.
In the current nuclear balance, Russia outnumbered the United States by 1,560 to 1,054 in ICBMs. The Soviets, who got off to a late start in modern submarine-launched ballistic missiles, have pulled to within about 100 of the U.S. total of 656 such missiles.
Within a few months, U.S. intelligence estimates, Russia will surpass the United States in this weaponry as new Delta missile submarines enter the fleet. The United States maintains a 496-140 superiority in long-range bombers.
Because the United States already has placed multiple warheads on most of its ICBMs and submarine missiles, this country's arsenal of strategic nuclear warheads and bombs outstrips the Soviet Union's by about 6,800 to 2,200.
But this is certain to shift drastically as the Russians place MIRVs on their missiles.
Schlesinger predicts the Russians could deploy about 7,000 warheads on their ICBM force alone by the early 1980s. There is no way of telling yet how many additional warheads will be arrayed in their submarines, but it could run into the thousands after the Soviets apply the MIRV technology to sub-launched missiles.
What makes this prospect ominous, according to U.S. defense officials, is that the Soviet ICBM warheads are likely to range between one megaton and two megatons in yield, far bigger than U.S. MIRVs. A megaton is a measure equivalent to the explosive force of one million tons of TNT.
Schlesinger has warned that such a massive Soviet force of heavy warheads, if highly accurate, could pose a serious threat to survival of U.S. ICBMs, even after their underground launch silos are fitted with strengthened protection.
This makes it all the more urgent, in Schlesinger's view, that U.S. negotiators win agreement from the Russians for what he calls "essential equivalence" between the offensive nuclear forces of the United States and those of the Soviet Union.
"We are prepared to balance our strategic forces down if SALT succeeds, or to balance them up if we must match Soviet momentum," Schlesinger said in his annual report.

While hoping for the best from the SALT talks, Schlesinger advised Congress that "we should prepare for the worst."
"If we make visible signs that we are prepared to match them, it will improve our bargaining position," the defense secretary said.
The Pentagon is planning to build a force of new Trident submarines to carry 6,500-mile range missiles in the 1980s and beyond.
It may order an advanced B1 bomber into production after prototypes pass rigorous flight tests and if Congress approves—which could be a big if.
Schlesinger believes it imperative to go beyond this and start research and development on a whole series of what he calls "hedges," in case the SALT talks fail and the United States must act to prevent falling into dangerous nuclear inferiority in the years ahead.
Among other things, these initiatives look to improving missile accuracy, along with development of both heavier warheads and larger clusters of smaller warheads to permit wider choices in targeting.
Also, the Pentagon is proposing work on mobile ICBMs that could be fired from airplanes, trucks or trains; on an airbreathing cruise missile to complement the bomber force; on another new class of relatively small missile-firing submarines, and on a brand new ICBM to follow today's Minuteman.

Tomorrow: Conventional military strength.

Impeachment Panel Bid Turned Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Judiciary Committee unsuccessfully sought tapes of 42 presidential conversations rather than six, according to White House analysis of the hitherto secret request.
And, at the same time, the committee's chief impeachment lawyer, John Doar, asked for access to all the files of four Watergate figures who once were top aides to President Nixon.
The Judiciary Committee released the text of the White House refusal of both requests last Thursday, but Doar wouldn't specify what he had asked for.
The White House has agreed to furnish the committee anything previously given to the special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski. However, the prosecutor has not been given any of the 42 conversations, a White House official said.
Members of the committee, a number of whom have not seen Doar's letter, have spoken as if six conversations were requested. But details of Doar's letter, made available by a White House official, show he sought evidence on Nixon conversations in six categories, not just six conversations.
The White House official says the six categories add up to 42 conversations Nixon held variously with H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, Charles W. Colson, John W. Dean III, Richard G. Kleindienst and Henry R. Petersen during February, March and April 1973.
The first four were all top White House aides. Kleindienst was attorney general and Petersen is an assistant attorney general.
Additionally, Doar referred to files of the four former White House aides and discussed whether "we could work out a way whereby members of the inquiry staff may examine these files for the purpose of selecting materials which, in our opinion, are necessary for the investigation . . ."
The official who made the letter available asked that his name not be used, but said the files request was "an unreasonable demand for a fishing expedition."

He contended that Doar tried to hide the request by not making the letter available at the same time the committee released the White House response from James D. St. Clair, Nixon's impeachment defense lawyer.
Doar, at an open committee hearing Thursday, read only a portion of his letter and said he could not detail his request because defendants in Watergate criminal cases were involved.
He and committee chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., have consistently maintained the committee is not interested in a fishing expedition.

OU Budget Given Nod By Trustees

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University trustees have approved a $41.8 million budget for the 1974-75 school year.
At the same time, the trustees approved Monday "with the greatest reluctance" a budget for the 1975-76 year which will necessitate the termination of some faculty jobs unless more funds are obtained, the school said.
The latter plan was proposed by the administration as part of a two-year program for reducing expenditures in light of decreasing funds, said President Claude R. Sowle.
The 1975-76 budget is estimated at about $40 million, Sowle said.
He said OU will continue its efforts to get increased appropriations from the legislature for the 1975-77 biennium.
The fiscal program was approved by the trustees 4-3 after a lengthy debate during which a motion to postpone action on the 1975-76 plan was defeated.
In other action the board accepted the resignation of trustee Robert B. McAlister, who had served since 1973.
The Columbus attorney gave no reason for his resignation.

Dairymen Protest Federal Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — An announcement last week by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz that 1974-75 government price supports for milk will be held to the minimum allowed by law has caused a gush of protest from farmbelt members of Congress and dairy producer representatives.

Butz announced Friday that supports for manufacturing grade milk for the year beginning April 1 will be held to $6.57 per 100 pounds, or 80 per cent of the estimated parity price as of that date. That will be an increase of 96 cents from the current support of $5.61 per hundredweight.

The National Milk Producers Federation, which represents dairy farmer cooperatives, had wanted the new rate set at 90 per cent of the parity price, about $7.39 per hundredweight.

Under law, Butz could have set the 1974-75 support as of April 1 in the range of 80 to 90 per cent of parity, a figure used to reflect farm production costs. He chose, instead, the minimum level.

"This decision represents a complete disregard of the criteria for establishing the support price as spelled out by Congress," Patrick B. Healy, federation secretary, said Tuesday in a statement. "Further, it invites unnecessary hardships for the dairy farmers and consumers of this nation by impairing the milk supply."

Healy says dairy farmers have had profits squeezed by high production costs so that many have been forced to cut back herds or get out of the milk business altogether. The USDA says milk production last year dropped 3.5 per cent and that another dip of one per cent is expected in 1974.

Many members of Congress support Healy's view that a higher price support rate is justified. Sen. Milton Young, R-N.D., for example, said in a statement, that he hoped the secretary "will reconsider his position" and set the rate at 90 per cent.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said the 80 per cent decision reflected what he called "the administration's lack of understanding" of dairy farmers' problems.

The Agriculture Department, meanwhile, has tabulated U.S. milk output for February and says production was slightly more than 8.71 billion pounds, down three per cent from the same month last year.

"This marked the 17th consecutive month milk production declined from the corresponding month a year earlier," the Statistical Reporting Service said. "Production during the first two months of 1974 was 3.0 per cent less than during the corresponding period last year."

But the report showed milk production per cow in February was at the same average level as a year earlier, the first time output has matched year-earlier figures in eight months.

5 Seminars Announced By OLA

Ohio Lung Association (OLA) today announced a series of five seminars on "General Hospital Treatment of Tuberculosis" to be held this spring beginning in Toledo, March 28. The Ohio Department of Health is a co-sponsor of the series and local arrangements are being made by local Lung Associations and hospitals.

"In the last year," said Dale C. Hollern, executive director, OLA, "over two dozen general hospitals have opened their doors to treatment of patients with active tuberculosis. The treatment of TB is now back in the mainstream of our medical delivery system."

The five seminars are scheduled for March 28, Toledo; April 18, Lima; April 25, Troy; May 2, Chillicothe; and June 11, Akron.

The all-day seminars will be programmed for general hospital staff and public health personnel in each area. Subjects for lectures and discussion groups include modern concepts of infectiousness, case detection, treatment and care, and special interests of hospitals in attendance.

"Lung associations have campaigned for four years," Hollern said, "to persuade hospitals and health departments to switch from long hospital stays at specialized isolation facilities to short hospitalization at local general hospitals. We're happy that hospitals have accepted the concept just as our last TB hospitals are closing."

Reye's Syndrome Depletes Blood

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Children's Hospital has appealed for 24 units of blood in hopes of saving the life of the 14th child in the Cincinnati area to be stricken with Reye's Syndrome this year.

The only treatment for the rare blood disease is blood replacement, a hospital spokesman said. The hospital reported that its supply of all types of blood has been depleted by this year's epidemic of the disease.

Only nine cases of the disease were reported in the Cincinnati area last year. Four proved fatal.

Glenn Raps Metzenbaum

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Democratic Senate candidate John Glenn said Tuesday he plans to continue to hammer at U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum's personal and campaign finances "because we think he has a lot to hide."

Glenn faces Metzenbaum in the May 7 primary.

Glenn characterized Metzenbaum as "the millionaire up on the hill in Shaker Heights who isn't paying anything in taxes."

The former astronaut referred to Metzenbaum's dispute with the Internal Revenue Service over $118,000 in federal taxes for 1968 and 1969.

Metzenbaum paid the taxes two days before his appointment to the Senate by Gov. John Gilligan. The money is in escrow pending resolution of Metzenbaum's challenge of the IRS ruling.

Glenn, who earlier released copies of his back federal tax returns, challenged Metzenbaum to do the same.

State Worker In Union Office

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An employee of the state Department of Industrial Relations says he had permission to enter the Ohio AFL-CIO headquarters over the weekend and was not there for any clandestine purpose.

Charles Borsari, the union's former public relations man, said Monday that Warren J. Smith, secretary-treasurer of the Ohio AFL-CIO, let him into the building to use the union's copying machine and binder.

LEGAL NOTICE PROPOSALS FOR SCHOOL EQUIPMENT

Separate, sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Education of the Pickaway-Ross County Joint Vocational School District, 34 South Main Street, Kingston, Ohio, 45644, at the office of the said Board of Education until 12:00 o'clock noon, E.D.S.T. on the 4th day of April, 1974, for the purchase of Furniture for the Teacher Centers, for the Pickaway-Ross Vocational Center, and at that time and place all proposals will be publicly opened and read aloud by the Clerk of the said Board of Education, tabulated and a report thereof made to the Board of Education at its next meeting.

Copies of the specifications, instructions to bidders, and proposal forms may be obtained at the office of the Clerk-Treasurer, 34 South Main Street, Kingston, Ohio, 45644. All proposals shall be made on blank proposal forms furnished by the Board of Education and shall be enclosed in a sealed envelope and addressed to the Board of Education, Pickaway-Ross County Joint Vocational School District, Ross County, Ohio and endorsed "Proposal for School Equipment" showing date and hour of opening on the outside of the envelope. The successful bidder will be required to furnish a satisfactory performance bond for one hundred per cent (100 per cent) of the aggregate contract price. Bonds shall be on Ohio Department of Education form OVEB.

The said Board of Education reserves the right to waive irregularities, to accept or reject any and all, or parts of any and all bids. No bids may be withdrawn for at least thirty (30) days after the scheduled closing time for the receipt of bids. Board of Education, Pickaway-Ross County Joint Vocational School District, Nelson L. Stevens, President, Mary E. McWhorter, Clerk, March 6, 13, 20, 27

The 1973 budget of the local American Red Cross was covered by the Community Fund in the amount of $30,985, enabling the chapter to serve the county.

"The purpose of my visit was to make Xerox copies of a book I had prepared in 1972 for the Ohio Labor Press Association. The book is about 50 pages, and I made six copies," Borsari said in a statement.

"I paid Mr. Smith for the use of the machine and materials," he said.

When contacted at his home in Columbus, Smith verified Borsari's statement.

But Ohio AFL-CIO President Frank King said he wasn't satisfied with the explanation.

"I haven't heard from Mr. Borsari or the governor," King said.

King said he sent a letter by messenger to Gov. John J. Gilligan Sunday night asking for an explanation of Borsari's presence in the union's headquarters.

"I asked him to help me get his (Gilligan's) employee Chuck Borsari, to explain to me why he was there, and what he was doing."

"I haven't got that yet, and until I get that I'm not going to be satisfied," King said.

King said that the governor's chief of staff, John Hansen, had contacted him within an hour of receiving his letter and had told him that an investigation would be made.

A spokesman for the governor said Gilligan had asked Joe Shump, director of the Industrial Relations Department, to investigate King's report.

King said he learned of Borsari's visit to the building through William Obbagg, a union employee. King said that the governor had an entire day to look into the matter and he considered that long enough.

"I have a responsibility as president of that organization," King said, "to be able to report to my people, my executive board and the people who own that union... from first hand knowledge what happened and the circumstances when someone who doesn't work for us was in our building, all alone, with no one to protect our privacy."

King refused to comment on what action he would take if he did not get a satisfactory answer from the governor.

He did say however, "I have several other alternatives that I would rather not have to pursue."

King said he had not yet "talked" with Smith, the union official who let Borsari into the building.

Smith, however, said he had sent the union president a written memo explaining the incident.

King declined comment.

Borsari resigned his position at the AFL-CIO Oct. 1, 1973. He currently is a public information officer for occupational safety and health matters in the Industrial Relations Department.

Shump could not be reached for comment.

Anne And Mark Hire New Cook

SANDHURST, England (AP) — Newlywed Princess Anne warned her husband-to-be in advance that she could cook little more than sausages.

But Army Capt. Mark Phillips won't have to worry much about the food. Mrs. Flora Davies, the new chef hired by the couple, has ample cooking experience from her previous job of preparing 400 meals a day at a secondary school.

Lukens Eyes Election Race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens is considering a congressional race if the General Assembly passes a bill which would give new life to his political career.

The Middletown Republican said Tuesday he might run for the 24th District congressional seat being given up by U.S. Rep. Walter Powell.

"If the bill goes through, I may consider running for Congress, but it will probably take another court opinion since the deadline for filing is already passed," Lukens said.

Powell, a Republican, holds the seat Lukens gave up when he unsuccessfully ran for governor in 1970. Lukens later was appointed to the Ohio Senate and was elected to a four-year term in 1972.

Lukens was ruled off the ballot for five years under an Ohio law providing that penalty if a personal expense statement was not filed within 45 days after an election.

The campaign financing bill pending in the House State Government Committee has been amended to reduce the penalty from five years to one year, retroactive to Nov. 2, 1972. That would allow Lukens to seek reelection to the Senate in 1975.

The sponsor of the amendment, Rep. Patrick A. Sweeney, D-6 Cleveland, said about 135 other persons in the Cleveland area are under the same penalty. He said they are "honest people who simply did not meet the deadline."

16 Girls Evacuate Burning Dorm

ALLIANCE, Ohio (AP)—Fire early today forced 160 girls to flee their dormitory on the Mount Union College campus. There were no injuries.

Firemen said the fire in McMaster Hall apparently was started by a burning candle in one of the girls' rooms on the first floor.

Gucci Fashions Shown At Opening

NEW YORK (AP) — Wellheeled Gucci fans turned out for a spring-summer show of the latest horse-bit trimmed shoes, skirts, pants and dresses.

Gucci shoes and purses have long been a staple in the wardrobe of a certain kind of rich woman. She's the one with the good skin, simple hairdo, real gold pin and cable-knit sweater. She's usually one step behind the most current fashions, on purpose, and she goes for quality.

In the 1960s, particularly, the Gucci shoe became such a status symbol, it was almost a joke. People referred to the "Pucci-Gucci" crowd.

The look has been imitated, endlessly, in all price ranges, from the shoe with the gold horse-bit across the instep to the red and green striped detailing on luggage and purses.

The shoes are built like bullets, and it's hard to imitate such resilience to wear and tear.

"We are the most copied people in the world," said Dr. Aldo Gucci, a senior member of the Italian-based firm, adding that his customers are not always happy to see those inexpensive imitations.

In fact, down the street from the St. Regis Hotel, where the show was held on Tuesday, Gucci-looking purses were selling for $6.99. Real Gucci purses run from $60 to $220. Women's shoes go from $39 to $59.

However, Dr. Gucci says the firm's business has increased 25 times over in the last five years. At this point, Gucci has 16 stores in various countries and 42 franchises in the United States and Europe.

Although other companies are constantly changing styles in a frenetic search for something new, Gucci has continued to carry the horse-bit shoe for the last 30 years, along with other up-dated styles.

The best looks in the show were the simplest, neat pants with knit tops and leather jackets. The worse were the ones with a few too many stripes, pockets or bits of gold.

Colors were soft salmon, lapis blue and gold. "Born free" animal prints of ostriches and zebras turned up on sweaters and blouses.

Women's leather coats run $595. A man's wool V-neck cardigan sweater is $145. An ivory linen shirt is $75.

At these prices, no wonder Gucci is a status symbol for some people.

Picasso Children Win Court Fight

GRASSE, France (AP) — Claude and Paloma Picasso have been declared legitimate heirs of Pablo Picasso, despite their father's successful fight against their efforts to be declared legitimate while he was alive.

A French court Tuesday ruled that the famous artist had confirmed his paternity of Claude, 26, and Paloma, 25, by dedicating paintings to them as his children.

The two were the offspring of Francoise Gilot, who bore the two while Picasso was married to his first wife, Olga Koklova.

A son by that marriage, Paul, and Picasso's widow have been trying to establish themselves as the sole heirs and are expected to contest the court ruling.

Heavy Rain, Hail, Wind Strike Texas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Heavy rains, hail and high winds struck parts of Texas today, the worst bad weather exception to a generally clear weather pattern over the nation.

Thunderstorms triggered golf-ball-size hail and heavy rain in areas near Presidio in extreme western Texas late Tuesday night. Damaging winds struck Mirando City in southern Texas.

With the exception of a few clouds over northern Florida, the remainder of the Gulf region had fair weather.

Rain, snow showers and a few thunderstorms dampened Washington and Oregon and ranged eastward toward Montana.

Light rain, snow and sleet chilled the southern Appalachians extending into Virginia and North Carolina.

A brief cooling trend held temperatures in the teens overnight from the Great Lakes to New England.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 10 at Limestone, Maine, to 72 at Brownsville and Beeville, Tex.

Low Income Persons Sought By PICCA

In January 1974 the Social Security Administration began making payments to aged, blind and disabled persons whose income and resources are limited.

The aim of the program is to provide supplemental income payments, when they are needed, so that anyone who is 65 or older, or blind or disabled can have a basic cash income. If you are such a person or know of some one who is, get in touch with Pickaway County Community Action Agency.

Hoover, Pontius Named In Central District

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Columbus Whitehall's Terry Burris and Ted Williams of Mount Vernon are the Associated Press Class AAA Co-Players of the year for Ohio Central District high school basketball.

Burris and Williams were the outstanding big men in the Ohio Capital Conference this season.

The 6-foot-7 Burris, reigning Ohio Class AAA state high jump champion, averaged 23.7 points for Whitehall and has many of the major college basketball powers seeking his services.

Williams, 6-5 and also a senior, scored at a 20.7-point clip during the regular season.

The selections, based on regular season performances only, were made by a district panel of sports writers.

Wayne Rittenhouse, who guided Columbus Northland to a share of the City League title Mohawk, was named the Central District Class AAA Coach of the Year. Northland finished the regular season with a 12-5 record.

Ed Tillman, a 6-2 Mohawk speedster, was the area Class AA Player of the Year after averaging 21.5 points. The coaching honors in Class AA went to Bob Hoover, who guided Ashville Teays Valley to a 16-2 mark.

In Class A, Scott Ballinger of defending state tournament ruler Marion Pleasant was the No. 1 player and Jerry Connor of Columbus St. Charles the top coach.

Ballinger, a 6-1 senior allstate quarterback, pumped in 19.1 points per game for the Spartans. Connor led St. Charles to a 13-5 regular season record, competing against mainly Class AA Central Ohio Catholic rivals.

NCAA Small College Tourney Opens; Morgan State Pumas Favored

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — The NCAA small college basketball tournament begins this afternoon with favored Morgan State featured in the opening game, but there is a ripple of excitement building for the chances of St. Joseph's, Ind., the local favorite. The 20-9 Pumas, from Rensselaer, are paced by the leading scorer going into the tourney — Jim "The Rocket" Thordsen, with a 25.7-point per game average.

St. Joseph's, the smallest school in the tourney with an enrollment of only about 100, meets 14th-ranked Southwest Missouri, 19-8, in the last quarter-final game of the day. Southwest's hungry Bears have made five appearances in this tourney and never have won it.

Morgan State, also the Bears, must get past defense-minded Bloomsburg State, 22-5, in the tournament's kickoff game.

Small college All-American Marvin "The Human Eraser," Webster, leads 25-5 Morgan State, ranked No. 2 in the latest Associated Press small college poll, with his average of 22 rebounds a game and 21.4 points.

In the day's second quarterfinal, No. 15 New Orleans, 20-7, is paired with Riverside, 21-7. No. 13 Norfolk State tests Assumption, 20-6, in the other opening-round match.

New Orleans, the tournament's largest school with 13,000 students, boasts a lineup with three Hoosiers — Terry Gill of Montezuma, Allen Kennedy of Brazil and Mike Lane of Lebanon — who could give the Privateers an emotional edge.

The Riverside Highlanders lost in the opening round of this tourney last year.

John Grochowalski, averaging 23 points a game and over 15 rebounds, puts his Assumption Greyhounds into a good position to improve upon their third place finish in the small college finals in 1973.

Norfolk's Spartans, along with Southwest and New Orleans, edged into the AP small college poll for the first time this week.

MSU Grabs 2 Big Ten Cage Berths

CHICAGO (AP) — Led by Mike Robinson, honored for the third successive season, Michigan State surprisingly captured two berths on the 1974 All-Big Ten basketball team named today by The Associated Press.

Cochampions Michigan and Indiana, and Purdue-battling for the conference title right down to the wire—each placed one star on the first honor team.

Michigan's peerless Campy Russell, newly crowned Big Ten scoring champion, was the only unanimous choice by the AP's selection board, while Robinson missed by two first-place votes.

Indiana's hard-working Steve Green also got strong backing, with the top five being rounded out by Michigan State's bouncy Lindsay Hairston and Purdue's consistent Frank Kendrick. The second team included C. J. Kupec, Michigan's rugged board man, Purdue's John Garrett, Indiana's Quinn Buckner, Iowa's Candy LaPrince, and Rick Schmidt of last-place Illinois.

Robinson and Kendrick were the only seniors on the first unit, while among the 10 players on the first two teams no fewer than seven are underclassmen.

In 1973, by comparison, Robinson was the only underclassman among The AP's first two honor-teams.

Jim Snyder Quits Post

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Jim Snyder resigned today after 25 seasons as head basketball coach at Ohio University, a school official said.

Frank Morgan, OU's sports information director, confirmed Snyder would step down.

The Bobcats ended their 1973-74 season last Saturday in a losing effort against Marquette in an NCAA regional playoff.

Snyder compiled a 354-245 record at OU.

Morgan said Snyder had decided to retire. "He told me he'd quit when it was no longer any fun," Morgan said.

No successor was named, but there was speculation Snyder would be replaced by Dale Bandy, a former OU basketball star and an aide to the head coach for 11 years.

Indians Bomb California, 9-6

By HOWARD SMITH
AP Sports Writer

The Cleveland Indians continue to have an offensive spring.

The Indians pounded out 11 base hits and outscored California 9-6 Tuesday for their third exhibition baseball victory in four outings. Cleveland has collected 41 runs in its four games.

George Hendrick cracked his second homer of the spring and also had a single for Cleveland. The Indians broke it open when they batted around and scored five runs in the sixth inning off Angels left-hander Rudy May.

Milt Wilcox was the winner and May the loser. Leroy Stanton homered for California.

In other exhibition games, Oakland topped San Francisco 8-5, San Diego routed the Chicago Cubs 11-6, the Chicago White Sox split their squad and lost twice, bowing to Pittsburgh 9-5 and St. Louis 2-1, Cincinnati defeated Los Angeles 6-4, Houston shaded Minnesota 4-3, Philadelphia buried Detroit 10-2, the New York Yankees blanked Kansas City 9-0, Boston beat the New York Mets 3-1, Texas downed Atlanta 7-3, and Milwaukee dumped Arizona State 5-2.

Deron Johnson slammed a three-run homer and a double, helping the Oakland A's beat San Francisco. Chris Speier contributed a two-run single for San Francisco.

Bobby Tolan's three-run homer led San Diego to its first victory of the preseason. Dave Roberts and Ivan Murrell also homered for the Padres.

Willie Stargell and Dave Augustine walloped two-run homers and Richie Zisk added a solo shot for Pittsburgh. Bill Melton and Luis Alvarado each had a two-run double for the White Sox.

Junior Kennedy's run-scoring triple keyed a four-run Cincinnati uprising in the eighth inning that carried the Reds past Los Angeles. Ken McMullen and Andy Messersmith doubled home a run apiece for the Dodgers.

Cesar Cedeno and Milt May had two hits each in Houston's victory. Larry Milbourne scored the winning run on a delayed steal in the fourth inning.

Mike Schmidt drove in three runs with a single and triple and Del Unser added a two-run homer for Philadelphia, which blasted Detroit pitching for 10 runs and 14 hits over the first five innings.

Ron Blomberg had two hits and three RBI in the Yankees' triumph. Blomberg has driven in 10 runs in 15 at-bats this spring.

Rookie outfielder Dick Rice had three hits and Mario Guerrero and Dick McAuliffe each drove in a run with hits in Boston's victory.

Roy Howell's run-scoring double keyed a four-run Texas outburst that carried the Rangers past Atlanta.

Milwaukee beat Arizona State with four unearned runs in the third inning on four walks, an error and a single by Charley Moore.

Cincinnati Reds Top Dodgers, 6-4

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Pitchers are usually ahead of the hitters in spring training, but with the Los Angeles Dodgers the pitchers' hitting is ahead of their pitching.

The Dodger Grapefruit League record fell to 1-3 with a 6-4 loss to the Cincinnati Reds at Tampa Tuesday.

The Reds collected eight hits off four Dodger pitchers, winning the game with a four-run eighth inning that was sparked by rookie Junior Kennedy's triple.

The Dodgers went into the inning with a 4-2 lead.

While the Dodger pitching was less than perfect, the Los Angeles hurlers kept up their pace at the plate.

Starter Andy Messersmith had a double for the fourth extra-base hit by a Dodger pitcher in four preseason games.

Pitchers have four of 10 Dodger extra-base hits in spring training and reliever Mike Marshall, probably the best hitter on the pitching staff, won't report until this Friday.

The Dodgers traveled to St. Petersburg today for a game with the St. Louis Cardinals with Tommy John to start for Los Angeles.

Tuesday was Messersmith's first pitching appearance of the spring and he worked three innings, yielding three hits and one run with three walks.

"I wasn't pleased," Messersmith said, "but I wasn't displeased." He said he felt no sign of a groin muscle pull that hampered him part of last season.

Catcher Joe Ferguson, who had been recovering from bronchitis, made his spring debut and went hitless in three trips.

"My timing is not what it should be," he said.

Aaron Fight Recalls Judge Landis Stand

CINCINNATI (AP)—The late Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis must be smiling these days.

"Yessirree, if he were alive today he'd be backing Bowie Kuhn all the way," said oldtimer Charles Ellis of Celina.

The peppery 84-year-old baseball fan thinks baseball could use some of the iron-fisted rule which earned Judge Landis the title of "Czar of Baseball."

"Why, the Judge wouldn't wait one minute on this Henry Aaron deal. He

Fairmont Holding Top Poll Spot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fairmont State preserved its No. 1 ranking in the weekly Associated Press college division basketball poll today after a week-long break from play, but Morgan State had to work to keep its No. 2 spot by winning both of its games last week.

Tennessee State, however, lost its third place position to Kentucky State, and Old Dominion yielded the No. 4 berth to Gardner-Webb after late-season losses.

Kentucky State, 24-4, moved up from eighth after winning its only game last week, and Gardner-Webb, 24-2, jumped seven places after winning both its games.

Fairmont State, 27-2, received 16 first-place votes and 408 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters in remaining atop the rankings. Morgan State, 25-5, and Kentucky State each got three top votes, but Morgan State outpointed the Thorobreds over-all 396-299. Gardner-Webb and Tennessee State each garnered one No. 1 vote with Gardner-Webb amassing 273 points to 220 for Tennessee State, which slipped after losing to Fisk.

Tennessee-Chattanooga wound up sixth, followed by Jackson State; Old Dominion, which lost to Norfolk State; Augustana, Ill., and Kentucky Wesleyan, which had been seventh a week ago.

Rounding out the top 15 were West Georgia, Wittenberg, Norfolk State, Southwest Missouri and New Orleans.

Dropped from the rankings were Roanoke, Alcorn A&M, Evansville and Midwestern.

Everything New About The Padres

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — Meet the new San Diego Padres: a new owner, a new manager, some new players, new uniforms, and a new lease on life in balmy Southern California.

What they'll have to prove is that they aren't the same old team which has finished at the bottom of the National League West for five straight years.

"I'm convinced we're going to get out of last place," insists the biggest of the new players, Willie McCovey.

The mild San Diego weather and the soft grass of San Diego Stadium should be kinder than the winds and astroturf of San Francisco to McCovey's aching knees and feet.

Even at 36, the sight of Big Stretch at bat and Nate Colbert waiting on deck will stir a new emotion in pitchers facing the Padres: fear.

"Don't tell me this is a hapless team," says John McNamara, the former Oakland A's manager who has replaced Don Zimmer at the Padres' helm. "We have the two most feared hitters in baseball."

There's a catch, of course. Both McCovey and Colbert play first base, so when Willie plays, Nate will move to left field.

Colbert, who hit 22 home runs last year and 38 in 1972, can move surprisingly fast when his back isn't hurting. He throws well enough, and played the outfield in the minor leagues. But he's never tried it in the majors.

There are many more question marks. Glenn Beckert, once an all-star second baseman, missed a good deal of last season with the Chicago Cubs because of an Achilles tendon injury. At 33 he may be slow to rebound.

Then there's the question of whether the Bobby Tolan who dons the Padres' new home whites will be the one who hit .283 for Cincinnati in 1972, or the bitter, frustrated player who batted .206 last year.

To get McCovey and Tolan, the Padres depleted their pitching staff dangerously, sending relief ace Mike Caldwell to San Francisco and workhorse starter Clay Kirby to Cincinnati.

Strong right-hander Bill Greif, who was 10-17 last year, and lefty Randy Jones, 7-6 as a rookie, head a starting corps that also could include Steve Arlin, 11-14, Rich Troedson, 7-9, ex-Met Jim McAndrew, 3-8, and rookie Dave Freisleben, 16-8 at Hawaii.

Besides Colbert and Tolan, there's last year's rookie sensation, John Grubb, an outstanding center fielder who hit .311 and has put on 25 pounds in a bid to avoid platooning.

Also available are last season's veteran Matty Alou; Leron Lee, a .300 hitter two seasons ago; bonus baby

Little League Fights Inclusion Of Girls

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Little League baseball administrators plan to field a team at the state capital soon to urge the New Jersey Legislature to stay a ruling requiring the league to let girls play.

Dave Winfield, who batted .277 in half a season; Ivan Murrell, Randy Elliott, Gene Locklear, and ex-Giant Bernie Williams.

There's no surplus of talent in the infield, where Beckert will team with shortstop Enzo Hernandez, .223, or Derrel Thomas, .238.

Third baseman Dave Roberts, .286 with 21 homers, and catcher Fred Kendall, .282, both were pleasant surprises last year.

This past January the State Division on Civil Rights formalized a ruling that made New Jersey the first state in the nation to require Little League baseball teams to permit girls to play. Civil Rights Hearing Examiner Sylvia Pressler issued the ruling last November.

At a meeting in Hazlet last Saturday, Little League officials incensed at the ruling voted unanimously to suspend all play in the state.

Jon Matlack of the New York Mets says he hopes to improve his control this year. He would like to cut down his bases on balls. He walked 99 in 242 innings last season.

Teachers To Fight Transfers At Cincy

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Cincinnati Federation of Teachers (CFT) has announced it will file suit Friday, seeking to halt the board of education's controversial teacher transfer plan.

Meanwhile, a group calling itself the Coalition of Concerned Educators, Organizations and Citizens has announced it will seek the recall of the five conservative members of the seven-member board.

Roger Stephens, president of the CFT, said following a meeting Tuesday night that the organization would challenge the transfer plan on the grounds that it implies a quota system and that leads to discrimination in hiring and placement.

The board of education adopted the Ministers To Fight Showing Of 'Exorcist'

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)— Six ministers who claim the film "The Exorcist" causes psychological damage to some viewers planned to take legal action to stop showings of the movie here.

Mayor Richard A. Porter earlier denied a request by the ministers to close the film, saying he did not have any authority to take such action.

plan to provide 75-25 ratio of white teachers to black in each of the city's schools this fall.

Stephens, meanwhile, called for a seven-day moratorium on teacher sick-outs and has asked that the board not take reprisals against those who called in sick Tuesday.

More than 100 teachers at six predominantly-black schools stayed home Tuesday, prompting School Superintendent Donald Waldrip to order those who did not appear for classes to produce doctors' statements or be docked their pay for the day.

Harriet Russell, president of the 2,400-member Cincinnati Teachers Association (CTA), charged that Waldrip's action violated teaching contracts and said a grievance would be filed with the school board today. She also said the CTA would consider seeking an injunction.

The Rev. Otis Moss proposed the recall action to the coalition at a meeting Tuesday night attended by about 200 teachers, parents and civil rights leaders.

Rev. Moss said the recall action would not be directed at the board's two liberal members who he said were capable of voting "freely."

King Charles I, barely over five feet tall, was the shortest English monarch.

Red Cross Youth Meets

The Red Cross Youth met recently at the Red Cross Chapter House, 167 Watt St.

Mrs. Pat Clark discussed the Red Cross Youth volunteer work at Berger Hospital. Girls are needed to usher at the High Fever Folies.

Girls were asked to volunteer as victims for the Girl Scout Emergency Preparedness Program to be held May 4 at Camp Ken Jocety.

The next meeting will be 2:30 p.m. April 6 at the Red Cross Chapter House followed by the Good Neighbors Red Cross 4-H Club meeting. Girls from Westfall High School will serve refreshments.

Volunteers present were: Karen Ash, Belinda Seimer, Brenda Fosnaugh, Debbie Dumm, Cindy Lockard, Joyce Woolever, Mary Issac, Leslie Pettit, Janet Jacobs, Becky Sowers and DeAnne Clark.

Adults present were Etha Mae Wolford, Delores North, Barbara Leaker, Carole Jacobs, Marilyn Scranton and Amelia Gardner.

American Red Cross Volunteers of Pickaway County cooperate with most community agencies in providing needed services. The veterans entertainment at the American Legion each Wednesday has been successful due mainly to the efforts of the Senior Citizens.

I could have told you without hesitation that it would rain Monday because each of the four times it has been our heartbroken lot to bid farewell to our exchange son or daughters it has rained. And this has been spring, summer, fall and winter. Makes one wonder what strange forces are at work to have the weather as gloomy as our emotions.

Even though the tears fall profusely on the day of parting I still recommend wholeheartedly the acceptance of an exchange student into the home for the immeasurable joy of having a son or daughter from a foreign land is the greatest. Our adored Celia left via Port Columbus on Monday to return to her native Campinas, Brazil. She was in our home for only three unbelievably short months but she will be our daughter in our hearts forever.

Two other girls from Brazil of whom I have written since they were our guests on different occasions, Maria Lima and Yara Helena Silva were also at the airport and since we had grown quite fond of these two girls, too, it was emotionally traumatic. However, it is my contention that the more one reaches out with love and affection to others the greater the capacity to evidence love and affection.

So on Wednesday we will welcome into our home and family Maria Martha Arguiello from Managua, Nicaragua. Maria Martha has been three months been in a home at Belmont, and attending Union Local High School. She and two other exchange students at the same school will be in our community for approximately three months.

Alejandro Garces native land Colombia will be with the Marvin Thompsons (that's Marvie baby) and Maria Christina Ramos will be with the John Graffis family. Another exchange student, Martha Lucia Marquez of Bogota, Colombia, who has been at Rogers High School, Michigan City, Ind. arrived Saturday evening to spend the next three months with David and Marabel Drummond, Connie, Sandee and Joy Lynn.

PTB Fun Night

One of the fun things the host parents can take their exchange student to enjoy will be the forthcoming Jackson Elementary Parent Teacher Boosters annual fun night to be held April 5. A supper offering a choice of hot chicken, sloppy joe, or hot dog sandwiches, pizza, potato chips, popcorn, homemade pie, iced tea or coffee will begin serving at 5:30 p.m. with Sue Gibson and Judy Wolfe, chairman.

At 6:30 p.m. the games portion of the show will be open with a wide variety of games with "lush" prizes to entice one and all. There will be a circle race and lollipop tree with Mable Duvall and Velma Marshall, chairmen; duck pond and balloon sale with Liz Dunlap and George. Ann Puffinbarger, chairman; hidden number dart card and rifle patch with Connie Grady and Janey Cottrill, chairman; orbit (spin) art with Loretta Keller and Ethel Galloway, chairmen; engraved jewelry, Evelyn Hastings and Thelma Francis, chairmen; swinger game, Ruth Schleich and Kathleen Beard, chairmen; teddy bear toss, Vivian Stonerock and Dorothy Carle, chairmen; clown face and pop can toss, Jean Valone and Becky and Larry Roush, chairmen; basketball throw, Jim Mowery, Rick Sims, and Philip Beard, chairmen; white elephant sale and bake sale, Jeanine Hamman, Marable Drummond, chairmen; bingo, Eileen Easterday and Harry Keller Jr., chairmen; tickets, Marcia Horch and Candy Commearns, chairmen; beauty shop, June Boyer, chairman; poster contest, Ann Walker, chairman.

General chairmen putting it all together are Dolly Thompson, Dixie Cummins and Beverly Whitten. They called a meeting of all chairmen and interested workers last Wednesday and outlined general rules and regulations and urged that chairmen of each announced committee encourage many other parents and interested citizens of the district to be a part of working together for a successful fun night.

The tickets chairmen are planning an advance sale of tickets that will result in a savings to those who purchase before the big night. Finalization of plans should be ready for next week's column. The poster contest will be open to Jackson grades 5 and 6 only. This includes those students instructed by Galbraith, Pond, Hulse, Roberts and Gramelt. Judging will be done on an overall basis with first prize being 15 tickets to the fun fair; ten tickets will go to second prize and third prize will capture five tickets.

Spelling Contest

The Westfall school district spelldown was held at Jackson school on March 15 with two representatives each from Monroe elementary, Derby elementary, Westfall junior high and Jackson elementary. Emerging victorious were Paula Azbell, first (Jackson) and Jerri Kaiser, second (Jackson). The winner will compete at Pickaway County level on March 22 and the best wishes of our district go with Paula as she vies for top honors for the second straight year. Paula is the daughter of Paul and Carol Azbell and Jerri is the daughter of Jay and Evelyn Kaiser — all residents of our community. Congratulations to both girls!

Science Fair

The eagerly anticipated annual Science Fair held at Jackson during March meeting of PTB was a howling success again Monday night with 176 participants and 172 projects. The judges, Marge Evans, Pickaway County elementary supervisor, John Tatman, Westfall High School social studies teacher, Steve Bartels, 4-H Agent, Mrs. Bruce Reid, home economics faculty member, Westfall and Ms. Jane Warner, also Home Arts faculty staff, Westfall were challenged to select blue ribbon winners from the many fine exhibits.

Judging was done on a peer basis; that is, kindergartners were judged on their own level; first graders competed for the blue outstanding achievement ribbon with other first graders and so on up through each of the six grades.

Blue ribboners were: Kyle Wolfe, Doug Greer, David Gobel, Dusty Puffinbarger, Holly Hastings, Sam Dunlap, Jane Whitten, Tina Coombs, Renee Morgan, Sherri Woods, Jonda McCloud, Kathy Tarbill, Amy Easterday, Marvin Glispie, Jimmie Justus, Chuckie Rutherford, Suzanne Matthews, Becky Stonerock, Lana Commearns, Tracy Smith, Jeff Fullen, Randy Eitel, Patti Garrison, Kim McCafferty, Shara Valentine, Teresa Carle, Mindy Neff, Brad Thompson, Lori Metzger, Teresa Stonerock, Mark Hill, David Strittmatter, Phoebe Shaw, Virgil West, Tyrsa Faber, Steve Carter, Paula Azbell, Patty Carle, Jerri Kaiser, Stephanie Snyder, Tamme Hively, Danny Mosley, Mike Whitten, Brenda Wilbanks, Cynthia Hastings, Helen Herron, Tina Russell, Greg Foster, Ricky Hill, Butch Picklesimer and Timmy Bush. All other participants received a green honorable mention ribbon.

Streiking!!

Williamsport may be a small village but it is no slouch in keeping up with the times and I am informed by "an always before reliable source" that streaking will take place at midnight within the next week. My informant drew the line at giving the exact location and definite date but insisted it would be done. So who wants to stay up so late to see a bare bottom? I'm a mother — I've seen my share.

Newcomers to our town are Gene and June Paynter and young son. June is an employee of the local Cardinal Market so tell her "howdy" when you're picking up some vittles.

Mrs. Harold Bivens (formerly Patsy Cornwell Reed) a recent patient at Berger Hospital nominates Betty (Mrs. Robert) Shaeffer for the good citizen of the week award and we second her motion. Patsy and her family, who are former village residents, now live in Circleville. Her children Terry, Jean and Scott attend Atwater school where Betty teaches.

Patsy's hospitalization meant her children (plus pre-schooler Bev) would be with Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie (Inez Cornwell) Haddox here in our town and would be unable to attend school for several days which made for a sad situation. Learning of this, Betty came to the rescue and transported the children to and from school each day. This is without question above and beyond the call of duty.

Needless to say, the Bivens are gratefully appreciative for such a beautiful act of kindness. What the world needs now is more — Betty Shaeffers.

National Honor Society

I do not mean to "scoop" my daughter Becki who is editor of Mustang Country for the Herald but let's face it there are those who read me and not the school page and of course, vice versa so how about if I report on the National Honor Society tapping held last Thursday morning in the Westfall auditorium. Such honors deserve to be printed more than one time anyway.

The 1973 Honorees presented an impressive and meaningful ceremony prior to and following the suspenseful tapping. Participating in the program were Darlene Barney, Carol Clem, Becki Easterday, Rae Fenstermaker, Susan Hillman, Debbie Hulse, Rick Metzger, Dave Shannon and Dianne Strittmatter.

Tapped into membership for 1974 are seniors Loretta Massie, Jake Carle, Joe Angles, Mickey Horn, Tim Brigner, Jerry Furniss, and Bill Jacobs. Juniors receiving the coveted honor are: Bunny Stevens, Robert Stone, Kathy Welsh, Mary Karn, Tom Schooley, Karen Marshall, Teresa Conley, Lynn Stillings, Mary Musselman, Theresa Monett, Doug Williams and Janie Schein.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Being 'Sorry' Not Enough

DEAR ABBY: I took this beautiful young lady on a date. For no reason at all, I beat her up, took her clothes off, and left her to sit in a cold locked car from midnight until dawn.

After I thought about what I had, done, I went back and gave her her clothes and told her that I was sorry.

Abby, I have never done anything like that before. I have never in all my life even hit a woman. I still can't tell you what made me do it.

I have called her up several times to tell her I was sorry, but as soon as she recognizes my voice, she hangs up on me. I don't blame her, but I just want her to know that I am very sorry for what I did, and I need to hear her say that she will forgive me.

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: You're lucky she didn't report you to the police. Quit calling her. You may be earnestly "sorry" and at the same time seriously "sick". Tell your doctor what you've told me. If he doesn't recommend counseling, call your local mental health association. And do it now before you do something else you can't explain.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 17 years to a man who is good to me and the kids, but he's always been the quiet type until we have an argument, and then he explodes. For instance the other night we had an argument about the bills I ran up. I admit I have a tendency to overspend.

After he yelled about that awhile he said: "And another thing, why do you make FISH all the time? You know I hate fish!" I was shocked. I never knew he didn't like fish. He always ate it without saying a word.

How can I get him to say what's on his mind without waiting for it to come out in a fight?

IN THE DARK

DEAR IN: Without nagging ("Why don't you ever talk to me?"), try to involve him in conversations. The more communication you have between you, the more you will learn about his likes and dislikes. And hurry up. You're already 17 years behind!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are heartsick! Our son and his lovely wife have been married 10 years and have two adorable children. Together they have just informed us that they and tea held in the home economics department with mothers of the 1973 members having the honor of serving as a hostess committee included 1973 and 1974 Westfall National Honor Society members, their parents, and members of the faculty. On the refreshment table was a center-piece with a large blue lighted candle encircled with gold (yellow roses which denoted the colors of N.H.S.

Be with you again next week, the good Lord willin'. Take care.
Think About: The Golden Rule in practice as we live from day to day will bring us real contentment and for others light the way.

Pickaway VFD Honors Past Members

At the February business meeting of the Pickaway Twp. Fire Department the members of the department honored past members.

Those honored were Roy Dunkle, Orla Hockman, James Little, Charles Moss, Kenneth Moss, Donald Myers, William Oiler, Ralph Payne and George Sparks.

A plaque honoring these past members will be on display in the fire house.

Also honored was Charles E. Harrison of Circleville Manor who was made honorary fireman of the year for 1973. He was presented with a fire department jacket, badge and plaque.

The first motorcycle was a wooden machine built in 1885 in Germany by Gottlieb Daimler with a top speed of 12 m.p.h.

Veto Possible Of Housing Bill, Ashley Believes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Thomas L. Ashley, D-Ohio, said Tuesday the $10.4 billion housing and community bill passed by the Senate may be too expensive to escape a presidential veto.

The measure, passed 76-11 Monday and sent to the House includes $1.7 billion in interim funds to continue present programs. It contains far more money than President Nixon requested and rejects his two subsidy programs.

Ashley is the ranking Democrat on the House Banking subcommittee on housing and a cosponsor of one of two proposals now being debated.

He said Congress has to scale a bill to the level it believes will get by without disapproval from the Office of Management and Budget.

Views On Television Television Schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Broadcasters for several years have been trying to get federal legislation that would extend the maximum period of broadcast licenses from the current three years to five.

The idea is to give the owners of the nation's radio and TV stations more of a breather between costly license renewal battles. Last week, they got a helping hand from the House Commerce Committee.

It passed a compromise four year broadcast license bill, the result of 17 days of hearings and testimony by 60 witnesses.

But broadcasters aren't home free yet, not by a long shot.

For one thing, the bill still must clear the House Rules Committee and then the full House. Then there is the matter of hearings on it in the Senate.

"We have taken the position that we would wait until the House acted and then take it from there," says Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., head of a communications subcommittee that'll study the bill.

But before that happens, Pastore says he first wants to hear from an up-to-strength Federal Communications Commission on both the merits of the bill and other major broadcast matters.

And the seven-member commission currently is short three members. FCC Chairman Dean Burch was the latest to go, resigning last week to join the White House staff.

Hearings were held in January on one FCC nominee, retired Detroit broadcaster James Quello, but Senate confirmation is being delayed until the Administration sends up two more nominees for consideration, according to Senate sources.

"Quite frankly, I am waiting for the full complement of the FCC to determine what the balance is going to be," Pastore said. "By that I mean the balance in serving the public interest, where they (the other nominees) come from, what are their backgrounds, what are their overall philosophies."

He said he also wants to give the three newcomers "a chance to digest the controversial aspects of this legislation and then bring them up here and see what they're going to say."

Is Pastore's position no commissioner, no bill? "Well, no," he quickly replied. "That's your conclusion. My conclusion is, unless we have a full FCC complement, I think that it would not be in the public interest to consider the bill and recommend it."

Sources on the Senate communications subcommittee say Pastore's desire to have a full FCC board on hand isn't that much of a barrier to Senate hearings on license legislation.

They say the new FCC nominations may come within this month—they declined to speculate on who'll be nominated—and that barring major opposition, all probably will be confirmed well before the House passes any measure they'll have to study and comment on.

But the bill passed by the House Commerce Committee could run into snags with Pastore on its four-year provision alone.

When asked which he favored—four years, five years or sticking with a three-year broadcast license—the senator replied: "I'm not prepared to say. It's not a matter of which I'd favor."

"It's a matter of which would be in the public interest. It's an important question. We haven't made that determination."

Bottles Aren't Worth It

PORTLAND, Ore (AP) — A spokesman for one of Oregon's largest soft drink bottling companies said that other state legislatures considering an Oregon-type "Bottle Bill" should suspend their efforts during the energy crisis.

Ted Gambel Jr., president of the local Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co., said the "Bottle Bill," which he strongly supported, has substantially increased, gasoline consumption for bottlers, brewers and distributors as more extra trips are now required to bring empty containers back from retail outlets.

The Oregon antilitter law, enacted in 1972, calls for a 2 to 5 cent deposit on all carbonated beverage containers purchased at retail outlets.

Wilson Gambles In Parliament

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson appears to be daring opposition parties to topple his minority Labor government or risk seeing Britain withdraw from the European Common Market.

It is a gamble that Wilson seems likely to win, no matter what the Conservative and Liberal supporters of Britain's membership in the European Economic Community do. Either Wilson remains in power at the head of a minority administration with only 301 seats in the House of Commons, 17 short of a majority. Or he is voted down in Parliament and goes to the country with the one issue that promises to win him a majority in an election — opposition to the Common Market.

The strategy became apparent Tuesday when Queen Elizabeth II opened Parliament by reading the policy program drafted by Wilson's Labor cabinet.

The Speech from the Throne dropped all the radical planks in Labor's campaign platform except the pledge to negotiate new terms for Britain's membership in the European Economic Community and then let the British public vote on them.

This was a direct challenge to Conservative party chief Edward Heath, whose government took Britain into the Market, and Jeremy Thorpe's Liberals, who want it to stay there. But it is the one issue that the opposition is not likely to force an election on because opinion polls have consistently shown 60 per cent of the British public opposes Common Market membership.

The polls also show that a majority of Britons believe their rising food prices are partly due to Britain's membership in the Common Market since Jan. 1, 1973. An election fought on the issue of the Common Market probably would produce another Labor government, and one with the safe majority it needs to go ahead with the radical programs it has put aside.

So far Heath's statements have indicated reluctance to try to bring the government down before it has a fair chance at governing. And Labor has been vague on its timetable for negotiating with the Common Market. In these circumstances, Wilson's minority government could stay in office for months.

New Venezuelan President Receives Mrs. Nixon's Plaudit

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — First Lady Pat Nixon saluted Venezuela's new president, Carlos Andres Perez, as "a very strong, impressive man" at an inauguration-night party given by the American Embassy.

"I'm sure that he has the interests of his country at heart, and we're all going to cooperate on hemisphere as well as global matters," she told reporters during the reception Tuesday night for 200 Venezuelans and Americans at Ambassador Robert McClintock's hilltop home.

Mrs. Nixon, who headed the United States delegation to Perez's inauguration earlier Tuesday, declined to comment on his inaugural address in which he pledged to speed up nationalization of the huge American and other foreign oil interests in Venezuela. She said she hadn't read the text in English and didn't want to rely on her "high-school Spanish."

Guests at the reception included Venezuelan officials and congressmen, former ambassadors, lawyers, industrialists and oil company officials.

Mrs. Nixon paused during the receiving line to give reporters comments on a wide variety of subjects, including Max, the ambassador's Doberman pinscher, whose barking "keeps me awake all night," she said.

Death Penalty Debate Shows Deep Split

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opening Senate debate has shown deep divisions over legislation to provide the death penalty for federal offenses involving treason, espionage, or murder.

One amendment up for action at today's session, offered by Sen. Floyd K. Haskell, D-Colo., would take out the requirement for a mandatory death sentence in certain circumstances.

Sponsors of the bill objected that this would undercut its basic framework, which is designed to overcome a 1972 Supreme Court decision that the death penalty has been applied in too random and discriminatory a manner to be constitutional.

The measure would make the death penalty mandatory in capital cases if any of a number of aggravating factors exist unless one of five mitigating factors also was present.

Haskell's proposed amendment would let a judge impose a death sentence in these circumstances but would not require it.

The question of whether aggravating or mitigating factors are present would be determined by a jury in a separate proceeding after a trial in which a defendant was convicted or entered a guilty plea.

Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., both opponents of the bill, said they also will offer amendments before final Senate action on the legislation.

U.S. Bodies Returned

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — A United States Air Force transport plane brought from Hanoi to Thailand the remains of 11 more American prisoners of war who died in captivity.

The flag-draped metal cases containing the bodies of each man were taken to Utapao Air Base in Thailand for identification and then return to the United States.

The cases also included each man's personal effects and the small headstone that had marked his grave.

Brig. Gen. Joseph R. Ulatoski, who headed the delegation which received the remains in Hanoi, said the return went very smoothly. He said he had learned nothing new about Americans still listed as missing in action or dead and their bodies not recovered.

Early Moves On Nixon Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House worked hard and early to line up tax deductions for President Nixon, White House and Internal Revenue Service memoranda indicate.

The memoranda from mid-1969, the year of Nixon's first inauguration, show inquiries about charging off for tax purposes part of the operating cost of Nixon's California and Florida houses, gifts and entertainment and the possibility of paying the President's daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, for White House guide services and charging off those payments.

A memorandum by then-presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman says Nixon "suggests that we might review the returns of one or more previous presidents for guidance."

However, White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler Tuesday quoted Nixon as saying he had never seen any returns of previous presidents and has no recollection of asking anyone to obtain such information.

Meanwhile, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., vice chairman of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, which is investigating Nixon's returns, repeated his prediction that the tax issue will give Nixon more of a push toward resignation than Watergate.

The White House has accused Mills of taking cheap shots by forecasting results of a report still to be written from the committee's secret investigation. Mills said, however, he made his prediction "that the tax issue could hurt the President more than Watergate — simply because people understand taxes."

"If the figures that have been talked about — $250,000 or $300,000 owed — are correct, people certainly will be asking questions," he said.

He said he was not accusing the President of fraud and that so far as he was concerned the committee report expected in 30 to 40 days will draw no conclusions.

"We will simply lay out the facts and let people draw their own conclusions," he said.

Roger V. Barth, then assistant IRS commissioner, replied to questions raised in the 1969 memoranda. He said some deduction should be permitted for use of the San Clemente, Calif., house for official visits and its den for an office and that if one of the two Key Biscayne, Fla., houses was used exclusively for meetings and business deductions could be claimed there also.

Tax information later made public by Nixon indicated he deducted on his 1969 return $4,699.62 for the San Clemente house and $6,586.05 for the Florida house.

Barth "most strongly" recommended against paying the President's daughter and claiming a deduction for the payments, largely because "the newspapers have made much of the fact that she has been acting as a 'volunteer.'"

Donald Nixon Loans Linked To Contracts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Columnist Jack Anderson says a California builder seeking a federal contract in 1971 made a $100,000 personal loan to President Nixon's brother Donald.

Anderson wrote in his column Tuesday that the contractor's firm later got a subcontract for more than $4 million to build homes at 18 Air Force bases. But Anderson said the current head of the firm denied that Donald Nixon had anything to do with the contract.

The columnist said the $100,000 was the second major loan Donald Nixon obtained from government contractors. He noted that in 1956 Nixon got a $205,000 loan from billionaire Howard Hughes, then involved with defense work.

According to Anderson, the 1971 loan was a $100,000 personal check, dated Aug. 4, from Lloyd Hallamore, then president of Hallamore Homes Inc.

He wrote that Securities and Exchange Commission records show in July 1971 Donald Nixon became a director of San-Bar Electronics Corp., "a closely affiliated Hallamore firm."

Anderson said his associate George Clifford "infiltrated a Hallamore meeting in July 1971 and heard Donald Nixon boast of his efforts to get contracts to build Hallamore homes."

The denial that Donald Nixon had played any part in obtaining the Hallamore government contract came from Harold Anderson, president of the firm and Hallamore's son-in-law, the column said.

Harold Anderson, according to the column, acknowledged that the loan had been made — and repaid. But the building firm head was quoted as saying: "The loan had absolutely nothing to do with the operation of Hallamore Inc."

Neither Hallamore nor Donald Nixon could be reached for comment. Harold Anderson refused to comment any further on the matter.

Community Services Council Met Tuesday

EDITOR'S NOTE: Members of the Circleville High School journalism class, as part of their coursework, are assigned to cover meetings of the Pickaway County Community Services.

By JOHN DOWLER

The Pickaway Community Services Council met Tuesday, at the Episcopal Church.

Harold Hewitt, president, called the meeting to order. It was announced that a film would be shown on Thursday, at 10 a.m., in the Red Cross building. The title of the film is "Feelings of Hostility".

It was also announced that a Free Diabetic Clinic would be held March 28, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., at the Lutheran Church parish house. Anyone can attend.

Fritz Jacobs, superintendent of Circleville City Schools, and Robert Ligit, a school board member, presented a talk on a new concept being instigated in the Circleville Senior High School next fall. It is called, "Other Guided Learning Experiences," for grades 10-12. These experiences include educationally related uses of pupil time designed to augment the pupil's graded courses of study which are planned cooperatively by the pupil, parent or guardian, and certified school personnel and which are approved by the principal pursuant to district rules and regulations.

The areas for consideration are employment, independent study, and volunteer work. More information can be obtained by contacting the guidance counselors at Circleville High School.

Richard G. Bergman was the guest speaker. He spoke to the council on the Scioto-Paint Valley Guidance Center.

Bergman is the clinic director. He has a Bachelor Arts in psychology from New York University and a Master Science in psychology from the City College of New York, and he also passed his Ph. D. exams and started on his dissertation.

The Center is a state and community sponsored mental health guidance center. Five counties are covered by this institution. They are Fayette, Highland, Pickaway, Pike, and Ross.

The guidance center office is open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. If you wish to arrange a talk or panel discussion, call 775-1260.

Harold Hewitt adjourned the meeting and thanked everyone for attending.
